Online Graduate Certificate in Applied Nutrition (GCAN)

The GCAN provides knowledge and skills in the area of clinical nutrition, training in advanced nutritional sciences, and prepares graduates to successfully compete for jobs in the nutrition workforce as well as enhance placement into graduate or professional training programs.
Fully Online Graduate Certificate Program

The GCAN is responsive to the challenges faced by today’s nutrition professionals, and provides a path to advancement outside of the traditional, research-intensive M.S. degree. This certificate may also serve to enhance the skill set of various healthcare professionals; including, but not limited to, physicians, nurses, chiropractors, medical assistants, physician assistants, nurse practitioners, dietitians, health/wellness coaches and personal trainers. This certificate program is designed to provide new insight and skill-building activities to promote positive clinical outcomes in today’s health care environment, including:

- Statistical methods
- Metabolism as it applies to various clinical conditions
- Research methods in nutritional sciences
- Advanced medical nutrition therapy (MNT)
- Nutrition assessment & support
- Nutrigenomics
- Body Composition

• Tuition is $650 per unit (residents and non residents)
• Applications available December 2016
• Classes start May 2017
